NURTURING RELATIONSHIPS IS THE FOUNDATION OF SECURITY

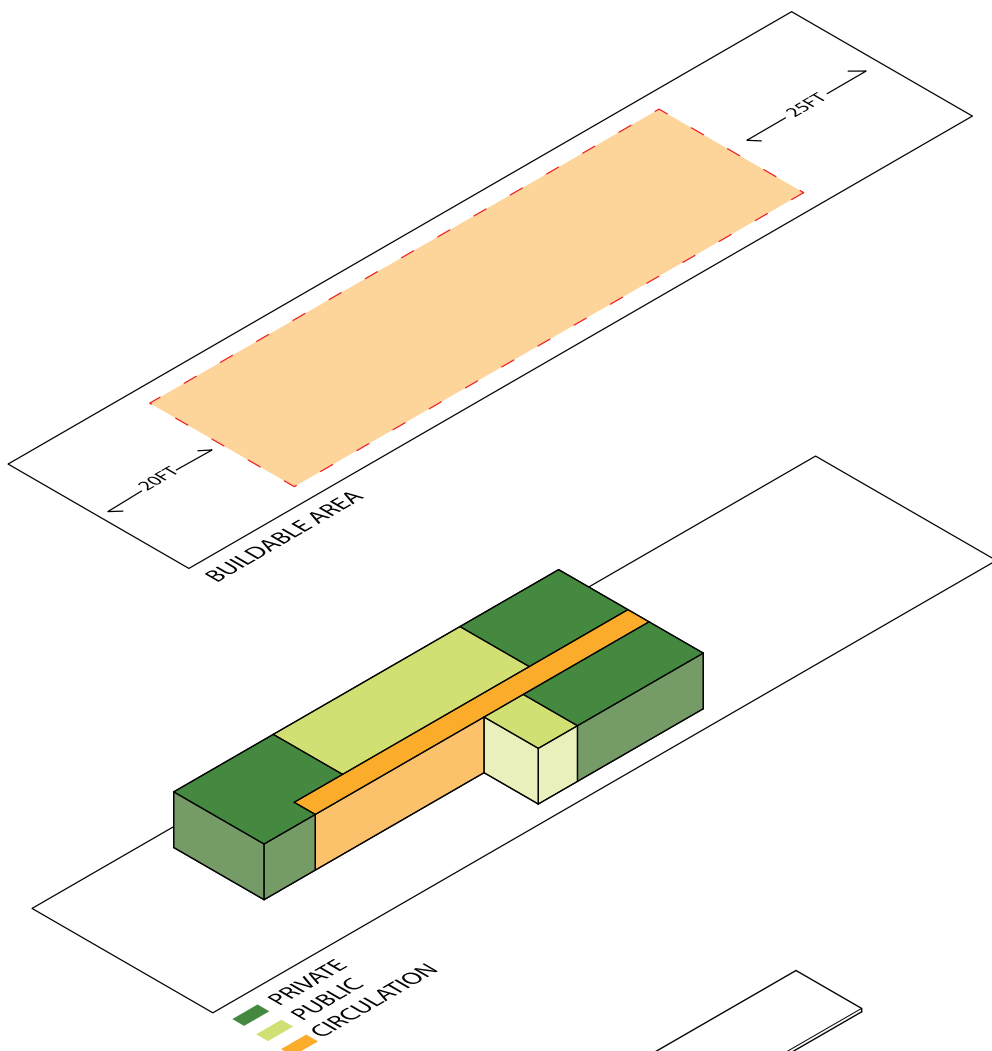

The goal for all housing is to allow for the greatest amount of different users to live and thrive within the home. The idea for this design is that the project can be built anywhere on any sized site, yet engage the entire surroundings. Opening the public area up to the yard allows for extension of space and increases the usability of the small factor home for a variety of uses and scale. Pushing the private spaces to the outer parts of the home creates a public space where community and engagement is encouraged. This is a concept that starts on a small scale and is brought out from the ideals of the family unit out into the neighborhood and community.
